Prize Announcement

Funding Agency: California Breast Cancer Research Program (CBCRP)

Description:

The Global Challenge to Prevent Breast Cancer is a competition designed to surface game-changing ideas for research on breast cancer prevention.

This challenge aims to advance breast cancer prevention by surfacing innovative breast cancer primary prevention research ideas from researchers and others interested in breast cancer prevention. By providing cash prizes, feedback from respected researchers, and the opportunity to present ideas to prominent leaders in the field, the challenge aims to surface breakthrough ideas that will help catalyze the field of breast cancer primary prevention research. A prominent panel of judges will review all applications. The most promising ideas will help frame CBCRP's future funding strategy and will be further developed in California with $15 million in grant funding from the program.

Application Deadline: January 31, 2019

Eligibility:

- Researchers (faculty, students, postdocs, and other researchers) and non-researchers (advocates, patients, community members, laypersons, or anyone else) may apply.
- Applications are accepted from individuals and from teams.
- The competition is open to applicants from across the globe; you do not have to be in California to apply.

Funding Type: Award, Prize ($5,000)
